

New Zealand Journal of Educational Studies Te Hautaki Mātai Mātauranga o Aotearoa

Volume 49, Number 2, 2014

SPECIAL ISSUE: Student Voice

Editorial	126
The trajectory of student voice in educational research Alison Cook-Sather	131
Exposing the divide between assessment and the point of learning through student voice Roseanna Bourke and Judith Loveridge	149
Empowerment and transformation for young people with social, emotional and behaviour difficulties engaged with student voice research Paula Flynn	162
Researching identity with indigenous D/deaf youth Anne Hynds, Susan Faircloth, Clint Green and Helen Jacob	176
Foregrounding the stories of secondary school students with disabilities Angela Ward	191
Representing Māori youth voices in community education research Joanna Kidman	209
Voice and the ethics of children's agency in educational research John O'Neill	219
Book Reviews	233