Countdown to Conference, Christchurch 2019

KA HAO TE RANGATAHI—STUDENT VOICES

We are excited to announce that we have invited the ākonga (Students) of Te Pā o Rākaihautū to speak at the conference. After the success of the Te Aroha warriors last year, a lot of feedback suggested that the voice of our youth was an important and refreshing part of the conference.

We are very excited to hear the voices of these rangatahi.

Tū ki te ao, tau ana.

The Herbison Lecture 2019

The conference committee is excited to announce that the Herbison Lecture will be given by Associate Professor Sonya Macfarlane of Canterbury University.

Sonya has been part of the NZARE community for many years. Her research focuses on the importance of culturally responsive, evidence-based approaches in education, psychology, counselling, health and human development in order to enhance the social, cultural, education and health outcomes that are achieved by Māori. Sonya argues that many of the solutions for reducing such disparities actually reside in 'te ao Māori'.

International Keynote Speakers

DR CHRISTINE HARRISON

Christine worked in secondary schools for 13 years before joining King's College London to run the Biology Education section. Her teaching and research have centred on assessment, science education, cognitive acceleration and the use of text and TV in classrooms. Throughout all of these, she has maintained an interest in professional learning, in working collaboratively with teachers and in ensuring effective knowledge transfer.

Chris is Reader in Science Education at King's College London. An active member of the science education community internationally, she is well known for her work in the interface between research and practice. Her research on classroom assessment has been highly influential on policy and practice in schools around the world as well as informing the curriculum of teacher education programmes in many countries. Her current research - including studies of assessment capability in teacher education and school science teaching - is funded by the Wellcome Trust, the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (Canada) and the European Commission.

DR CHRISTINE HARRISON

Leslie-Henfling is a Kamilaroi woman from New South Wales, Australia. Lana is the Principal of Winangay Consulting, an Aboriginal consulting business based in Sydney. She is currently a Senior Policy Advisor, Aboriginal Corporate Development at Growing Potential Ltd. in Blacktown, Western Sydney, NSW. Her role involves working with two unique Aboriginal business units to develop cultural practice frameworks; in addition to review and develop policy and procedures to ensure cultural ways of doing business.

Lana has a varied career of over 30 years working in Academia, Indigenous health, community development and Policing. In Academia, Lana worked as an Aboriginal Academic at several Universities: Macquarie University, the University of Sydney, Western Sydney University and Australian Catholic University. Over these 11 years, Lana sought to challenge systems, promote Aboriginal ways of knowing, being and doing in many ways including curriculum development, and motivate Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students to see, reach and go beyond their potential.

NZARE CONFERENCE LOGO 2019

The picture displays a Tewhatewha. The tewhatewha was a weapon used by many chiefs to command war parties. The use of the tewhatewha in this image represents leadership and our journey as rangatahi and kaiako to not just lead from the front but also from behind the lines.

The three cavities of negative space that display the stars inside them, depict the same shape that is used on the moko (facial tattoo) above the brow, also representing kumara holes. This imagery signifies a person with knowledge. The use of the three spaces also connects to the idea of the three kite (baskets) of knowledge. The stars on the inside of the spaces and the flax design on the outside represents the duality of te kauae runga (celestial- heavenly knowledge) and te kauae raro (terrestrial- earthly knowledge).
