Pre-Conference Events

ECE SIG Hui

Engaging in collaborative research:
Supporting transformative pathways.

Sunday 25 November 2018

The ECE SIG hui will be held on Sunday 25th November prior to the main NZARE conference. The theme of the hui is Engaging in collaborative research: Supporting transformative pathways and we are delighted to have two outstanding keynote presenters: Dr Lesly Rameka, University of Waikato and Professor Nicola Yelland, Flinders University, Australia.

As in previous years, we have several panel sessions planned and are most appreciative of the willingness of many of our colleagues who have generously agreed to be panel members. We will be celebrating the achievements of SIG members with the presentation of our Lyn Foote and Judith Duncan Awards as part of the programme.

The programme also includes our postgraduate Student Poster Session which provides a wonderful opportunity for students to share their research with the wider ECE research community. Supervisors, please encourage your PG students to submit an abstract for the poster session to sue.cherrington@vuw.ac.nz by 20th October 2018. Students will know if their abstracts have been accepted within one week of submission.

In a change from previous years, the registration for the hui will be through the NZARE national office, rather than through the conference registration process, as this helps to keep our registration costs down. We are still finalising the venue, again in order to keep our costs at a reasonable level and so we have been unable to confirm our final registration fee yet. We expect it to be around $50 for students and $80 for SIG full members and will provide details on the venue and final costs as soon as possible.

Following the Hui, there will be the annual SIG dinner that provides a further opportunity for SIG members to socialise and catch up with colleagues in a more informal setting.

If you have any questions about the Hui or wider work of the SIG, please feel free to email us as your SIG Co-convenors.

Warmest regards,
Sue Cherrington, Maggie Lyall, Waveney Lord

Māori Caucus Pre-Conference Event

Sunday 25 November 2018

Shaping our futures: Celebrating transformative educational research, policy, and pedagogies that foster the wellbeing of people and planet.
2018 Māori Caucus Hui

The MĀORI CAUCUS is delighted to announce this year's pre-conference hui will be held on Sunday 25th November, prior to the start of the NZARE annual conference (26-28 November) at AUT South Campus.

20 minute group presentations

As part of the Māori Caucus pre-conference day we are having presentations in te reo Māori in relation to the conference theme. We will place you into groups of three for the day depending on the content of your abstract. Each person in the group will present on the conference theme. We also have two exciting invited guest speakers who will also present on the conference theme. Professor Niniwa Short and Professor Tairahia Black.

Guidelines for your presentation:

- 20 minute time slot to be divided by three presenters (about 6-7 minutes each)

- Abstract 400 words or less and needs to include a title and your name and iwi details
- Prepare a powerpoint presentation and bring this on a USB drive
- After the 20 minutes there will be time for questions for presenters
- All presentations are in te reo Māori and the whole pre-conference hui will be in te reo Māori
- A translation service will be provided

You can submit your abstract on the NZARE website:
<http://www.nzare.org.nz/maori-caucus.aspx> and register for the event on:
<http://www.nzare.org.nz/current.aspx>

If you have any further questions about submitting your abstract about the conference theme please contact

Sig and Caucus News

Abstract reviews

Thank you to the SIG and Caucus convenors and members who spent time reviewing around 170 abstracts in total. If you were asked to make revisions to your abstract, please re-submit it by 5 October. These will then be returned to convenors to confirm they can now be included in the programme. A confirmation email will then be sent to those who revised their abstracts.

Mathematics education research SIG update

Thank you to those who have indicated their support for this new SIG – more than the minimum of 15 financial members required. A proposal to establish this SIG will be presented at the AGM in November.

Have an idea for a new NZARE SIG?

If you do, a good place to start is to write a short notice that can be included in the next newsletter and on NZARE's social media. To get a SIG up and running, you need at least 15 financial members of NZARE. The full SIG policy which includes the application details can be found here. Please email Linda if you're thinking about a new SIG and have questions:
linda.bonne@nzcer.org.nz

NZARE Student Travel Grants 2017

Student members may apply for a grant from NZARE for registration and travel costs to the 2017 Conference. Your paper must be accepted and you should be attending the whole conference. Applications will close 9 October. For full details see the Student & Emerging Researchers' page.

A shared Māori-Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander symposium at the AARE Conference

Margie Hohepa (University of Waikato), Kīmai Tocker (University of Auckland), Miriama Postlethwaite (Te Wānanga o Awanuiārangi) and Rachel Martin (University of Canterbury) have agreed to a request from Professor Tracey Bunda (University of Southern Queensland) to participate in a shared Māori-Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander symposium at the AARE Conference to be held in Sydney, 2nd-6th December. Under the umbrella of the conference theme, 'Education Research Matters: Impact and Engagement', Professor Bunda has suggested the 'Treaty' as the discussion point for the symposium.

Professor Bunda's invitation is significant as it facilitates collegiality, networking and whanaungatanga between Māori and Aboriginal-Torres Strait Islander researchers while also strengthening the ties between NZARE and AARE.

Membership

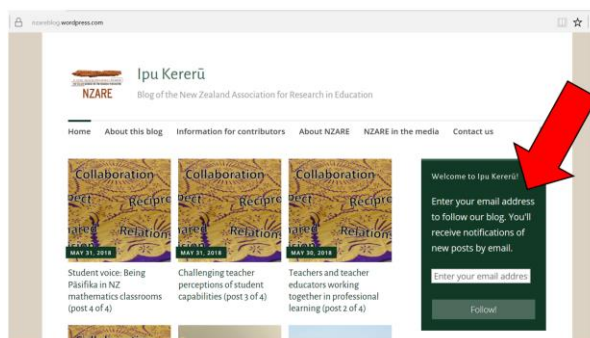

Membership is open to Established and Emerging Researchers. Benefits include: networking with peers; access to the Association's Journal and regular newsletters; discounts to events; eligibility for NZARE awards nominations; membership of special interest groups and others. The best way to grow the Association is by word-of-mouth. If there is a new research member in your organisation, how about meeting them for a coffee and suggest they might like to join - forward them a copy of this newsletter, or show them a copy of the journal.
